Hosted by Saving Slave Houses this hybrid field school and public workshop at Pharsalia Plantation in Nelson County, Virginia explores the intersections between the built environment, history, humanities, community, and storytelling.

Explore the Kitchen-Hospital-Quarter through four lenses:

- People
- Landscape
- Details
- Archaeology

Come learn about documenting historic sites of slavery and gain necessary skills to recognize and interpret the landscape of slavery from the perspective of enslaved people.

Professionals will introduce participants to:

- Hand sketching
- Measured drawings
- 3d laser scanning
- Photography
- Building Archaeology
- Oral histories

Funding provided by the Vernacular Architecture Forum and The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation.
